elect.

Yesterday at an early hour the Chancery Courtroom was crowded by citizens anxiously awaiting the result of the controversy between the self-constituted guardan of the public interest and the Mayor elect. At 10 o'clock, B. M. Ester, Esq., counsel of Mr. Johnson, arose and addressed the Court, asking that the motion to dissolve the injunction granted by Judge Hudson be heard immediately, on account of its being of great public interest.

nswer being made under outh must be THWAIT, CHAPMAN & Co.'s. of 1802, under the provisions of which Mr. Johnson became a citizen of the United States by operation of law, and cited 8 Page and 5th Johnson's Reports on this section of the act of 1802. He denied that a citizen, while a resident of this country, could throw off his allegiance. In England the doctrine of perpetual allegiance was contended for as a principle. In this country, allegiance cannot be evaded or renounced while the citizen is a resident. The answer filed by Mr. Johnson shows conclusively that Mr. Johnson is and has been a citizen of the United States. He asked that the injunction be dissolved; the bill might remain in Court, and the issue of fact investigated hereafter, but the answer is such that, to his mind, the dissolution of the injunction valuat follow as a matter of course. He did not regard as necessary to argue the question at length as necessary to argue the question at length, as the papers filed in the cause were sufficient.

Every motion to dissolve an injunction is submitted to the discretion of the Court. The answer of Mr. Johnson in this case entitles him to a dissolution of the bill are dealed. The complainant called for a discovery, and obtained it in full.

Mr. Estes here stated the rules of evidence governing such cases, and contended that even if no certificate of naturalization had been filed, the injunction should be dissolved by the Court on the answer, as it disproved the allegations of the bill.

The action of the Court in this is conclusive upon this Court, and this Court cannot go into the fact upon which Mr. Thomas Johnson obtained his naturalization papers.

Chancellor Morgan—A person cannot avoid the responsibility of citizenship, but may they not renounce such citizenship was obtained by operation of law as in this case?

The answer has been heretofore published, and denied all the allegations consined in the bill, except the one charging that he (Johnson) had claimed Eritish protection during the war.

Coloniel Raydolph, City Soliciter, addressed the Court on behalf of the molion to dissolve the injunction, and stated that he did not intend to detain the Court for any length of time in the discussion of this case; for to him it seemed that the answer filed by Mr. Johnson was sufficient to dissolve the injunction.
